

Year 10 pupils were invited to Salisbury Playhouse to take part in a Drama workshop which supported the Year 10 GCSE Drama curriculum allowing pupils to see how their drama coursework fitted into the real-life world of lighting, sound, producing stage management and costume.

The day provided a valuable insight into the production process, relevant to all drama students, but was particularly beneficial to students interested in production or a career in live events. Students had the opportunity to get hands on by taking part in practical workshops led by industry professionals and get to grill those working in the industry about their roles and how they got there.

Feedback from pupils has been really positive with pupils gaining real-life hands-on experience and above all, a true understanding of the world of creative arts and where this industry could take them.

Teacher Feedback: Wow. What a way to promote the arts, especially those involved in the development and production of theatre and performance. Every workshop was well planned and extremely engaging!

It was both heart-warming and inspiring to experience workshops designed to include everyone present, allowing each learner the opportunity to think, question, participate and grow.

The team that guided and developed our learners for the day proved to be masters-in-their-fields and supportive to any and all enquiries.

A special thank you to Elise, our host for the day. The brightest energy and enthusiasm for contagious!

The learners mentioned how much they enjoyed the hands-on approach to sharing career requirements and skills and they were absolutely bouncing on the bus drive back to school.

Thank you, thank you, thank you!
